Marion County Commission on Youth launches updated website

INDIANAPOLIS – The Marion County Commission on Youth (MCCOY) has recently upgraded their website, which can be found at www.mccooyouth.org.

The upgraded site features a mobile-friendly design, an interactive community calendar and a user-friendly layout. MCCOY plans to implement more special features, including a blog and open forum, in coming months.

The MCCOY website is a key tool that the organization uses to fulfill its role as a provider of information about youth and youth issues in the Indianapolis community. In addition to the calendar of youth and family-friendly activities, the website also includes links to the Youth Activity Directory, a listing of trainings for youth service providers and youth workers, advocacy updates and tools and much more.

“MCCOY’s updated website brings a modern feel to the work we have been doing in the community for decades,” said John Brandon, president and executive director of MCCOY. “We consider ourselves to be a valuable resource in Indianapolis. Our website helps us do our job by allowing us to provide information and services in a way that is more accessible and visually appealing for users.”

The website redesign was completed by Studio 27, a Westfield-based company.

“For the new MCCOY website, we wanted to bring the four pillars of their mission to life in an interesting, visual representation of the great service the organization provides for the community,” said Heather Sokol, Studio 27 co-founder. “The new look for the Marion County Commission on Youth now prominently features their cornerstone principles and goals in an easy-to-navigate, mobile-friendly website. We are thrilled to be a small part of the awesome work they do for kids and families in the Indianapolis area.

The Marion County Commission on Youth, Inc. (MCCOY) is the youth services intermediary for central Indiana whose mission is to champion the positive development of youth through leadership on key issues and support of the youth worker community. MCCOY’s vision is that every young person in central Indiana has opportunities to thrive, learn, engage and contribute.
